Channeled message from 1515 (regarding The Path To Heal and do TERRA combination. June 2015)

When the earth was forming, plants, trees and shrubs covered the planet. Humans came later and these plants were their first friends, food supply and protectors. Humans treated their cohabiters with great respect and they learned a lot about each other. As the DNA of humans shifted to resonate with the changes of the earth, so did the DNA of plants shift to resonate with the DNA of humans. And so they made this journey together. Whatever humans needed to heal their wounds, their illnesses and their sorrows, plants served their humans by creating within themselves the cure. This is still the case today, however with the modernization of the planet, including humankind's distance from nature, the plants indigenous to our environments became harder for most of us to obtain. Therefore, the essence of the plants are now harvested and bottled for human consumption.

Still remaining in these sacred plant essences is the cure for every human ailment. What is required of humans though, in order for the essences to work, is the desire to heal. The desire is blocked however for the reasons discussed in this book and all throughout The Path to Heal. Once The Path identifies the blockage, the use and application of essences becomes the perfect remedy. Because smell and memory are so closely related, the oils' smell enters our brain through receptors in our nose, stimulating our memories of perfect health. Because our desire to heal is no longer blocked, we willingly recode our DNA to our childhood and/or soul's memory of health. When we apply the sacred essence, our skin receptors accept the cure directly into our body and blood stream, raising our vibration to the perfection of function, releasing dysfunction.

doTERRA essences are a perfect match for the healing power of The Path to Heal because these oils are harvested and distilled in their indigenous environments, rather than being farmed and distilled in large agricultural centers. In the indigenous environments, which have the perfect soil and environmental qualities for the plant's growth, the plant DNA still evolves to meet the healing needs of human's perfectly. doTERRA is also easily accessible, therefore these essences can easily find themselves in the hands of those that need them.

Each time sacred essences are used within The Path to Heal, we not only raise our vibration, we send our inherent knowledge of healing through the collective consciousness of humans and plants, thus raising the vibration of the planet. It is this combination of the essences with The Path to Heal that allows us to heal on a cellular level, reconnecting us with our soul's connection to Mother Earth. This opens the human consciousness to connect to the Divine realm of love and light.